

Homage to the Three Jewels

Toh 816 · Derge Kangyur

Homage to the Three Jewels. This short dhāraṇī text, whose title is not fully preserved but which opens with homage to the Three Jewels and verses praising the one who overcomes miserliness, dispels stains, and remains free from harm, belongs to the class of protective incantations found within the Kangyur. Likely composed in Sanskrit and transmitted into Tibetan, it invokes blessings of well-being and describes a guide who leads beings onto the path of liberation, characteristic of the dhāraṇī and mantra literature preserved among the tantric collections. As Toh 816 in the Kangyur, it takes its place among numerous short ritual and incantatory texts recited for protection, purification, and spiritual benefit, reflecting the broader tradition of dhāraṇī practice within Tibetan Buddhist scripture.

Colophon

This is an AI-generated translation from the AI Stupa project. It was produced by a careful, doctrine-aware process aiming at a high degree of accuracy, but it has not been reviewed by a human translator and may contain errors. It is offered as a provisional translation for those texts of the Tibetan Buddhist canon that have not yet received an authoritative human translation. Where a published translation exists — above all from 84000: Translating the Words of the Buddha (84000.co) — that translation is definitive and should be preferred; please consult it instead. These translations are released into the public domain (CC0) in the spirit of spreading the Dharma to all corners of the earth.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.

May whoever encounters these words derive great benefit.