

Blazing Crown Protrusion

Uṣṇīṣavīrocana · Toh 600 · Derge Kangyur

གཙུག་ཏུ་འབར་བ

Toh 600 in the Kangyur is a short dhāraṇī text known in English as the Blazing Crown Protrusion, corresponding to the Sanskrit Uṣṇīṣavīrocana and the Tibetan Gtsug tor 'bar ba. It belongs to the broader category of dhāraṇī and mantra literature, presenting a powerful incantation attributed to the assembly of all buddhas whose teaching cannot be obstructed, and which is said to accomplish a vast range of karmic purifications, auspicious aims, and the pacification of ill-omened dreams. The text opens with a homage to the Blazing Crown Protrusion and proceeds in verse to enumerate the mantra's extraordinary efficacy across thousands of actions and circumstances. It is classified among the dhāraṇī collections of the Kangyur, representing the widespread Indian tradition of condensing buddhadharma into potent ritual formulas for protection and benefit.

Homage to the Blessed One, the Blazing Crown Protrusion.

Namas samanta-buddhānāṃ. Apratihata-śāsanānāṃ. Oṃ kha kha khāhi khāhi.
Hūṃ hūṃ. Jvala jvala. Prajvala prajvala. Tiṣṭha tiṣṭha. Phaṭ phaṭ.
Sarva-dur-nimitte. Duḥsvapna śāntaṃ kuru svāhā.

This mantra of a thousand buddhas is renowned as the Blazing Crown Protrusion.

The actions — those that number in the thousands,
eighty and five times ninety —
the various and manifold kinds of actions,
and all of auspiciousness, glory, and renown, it accomplishes.
Dreams —

Translator's Notes

- The text breaks off mid-sentence with "Dreams —" which corresponds to the beginning of a verse about dreams, likely continuing with something like "bad dreams it pacifies" or similar, consistent with the mantra phrase duḥsvapna śāntaṃ kuru ("make bad dreams peaceful") that precedes the verse section. The passage as supplied is incomplete.

The numerical phrase "eighty and five times ninety" renders षष्ट्यष्टोत्तशतं, meaning eighty plus five groups of nine, i.e. eighty plus forty-five, totalling one hundred and twenty-five thousand types of karma, though the verse is elliptical and the exact doctrinal referent of this enumeration belongs to the broader Uśnīsavijayadhārāṇī liturgical tradition.
