

The Noble King of Great Transformation, Together with Mantras

Āryamahāpariṇāmarājasamantraka · Toh 810 · Derge Kangyur

Toh 810 in the Kangyur is a short dhāraṇī text known in Sanskrit as the Ārya-mahā-pariṇāma-rāja-samantraka and in Tibetan by a corresponding title concerning a dedication or transformation of merit, its name indicating a "great king of dedication" mantra of noble origin. As is typical of this class of tantric ritual literature, the text consists of a sacred formula, likely accompanied by a brief framing or instructions on its recitation, intended to transfer or dedicate merit for the benefit of beings. It belongs to the broad category of dhāraṇī and mantra texts preserved in the Kangyur, reflecting the tradition of protective and merit-generating spells attributed to buddhas or bodhisattvas. The colophon identifies the translators as the Indian preceptor Vidyākaraṇa and the chief editor-translator Bandé Paltsek, indicating that this rendering into Tibetan was produced and finalized under the auspices of the great imperial translation projects. As with many such brief canonical works, its significance lies less in extended narrative or doctrinal exposition than in its ritual and devotional function within the broader corpus of Buddhist esoteric literature.

It was produced by a careful, doctrine-aware process aiming at a high degree of accuracy, but it has not been reviewed by a human translator and may contain errors. It is offered as a provisional translation for those texts of the Tibetan Buddhist canon that have not yet received an authoritative human translation. Where a published translation exists — above all from 84000: Translating the Words of the Buddha (84000.co) — that translation is definitive and should be preferred; please consult it instead. Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.

May whoever encounters these words derive great benefit.
