

This short text, known as the Aspiration Prayer Arising from the Chapter of Aval

Toh 812 · Derge Kangyur

This short text, known as the Aspiration Prayer Arising from the Chapter of Avalokiteśvara's Wish-Fulfilling Jewel (Tibetan: 'Phags pa spyen ras gzigs dbang phyug yid bzhin gyi nor bu'i rtog pa las smon lam 'byung ba), is catalogued as Toh 812 in the Kangyur. It belongs to the genre of aspiration prayers (smon lam) associated with the cult of Avalokiteśvara, the bodhisattva embodying great compassion, and is drawn from a larger cycle of teachings centered on his wish-fulfilling jewel. The prayer invokes the compassionate activity of Avalokiteśvara as a model to be emulated, expressing the wish that the speaker and all beings might likewise bring sentient beings to maturity, purify buddha-fields, and perfect the qualities of enlightenment. As a devotional and aspirational composition, it reflects the broader Mahāyāna practice of taking bodhisattvas such as Avalokiteśvara as exemplars for cultivating compassion and generating resolve toward buddhahood for the sake of all beings.

Just as has been taught, may I come to possess the power of accomplishment. Just as that Lord of Compassion's liberation through great compassion is spontaneously accomplished, may it become of one taste with the compassion of all buddhas. Just as the Lord of Compassion brings sentient beings to full maturity, purifies buddha-fields completely, and brings all buddha qualities to full perfection, so may I and all sentient beings likewise bring all sentient beings to full maturity, purify all buddha-fields completely, and bring all the qualities of buddha-fields to full perfection.

Just as, by recollecting and calling upon the name of the noble Avalokiteśvara, the Lord (Śiva epithet not applicable here—rather "Powerful Lord"), who is the very embodiment of the compassion of all buddhas and bodhisattvas of the three times, one comes to call upon by name and pay homage to all the Victors of the three times together with their heirs, so may this come to pass. Just as, by recollecting and calling upon the name of that noble Avalokiteśvara, the Powerful Lord of Compassion, who is the very nature of the compassion of all the Victors of the three times together with their heirs, and making offering to him, an unceasing continuum of skillful engagement in great compassion arises even toward all sentient beings who become objects of great compassion, so may this too come to pass.

For as long as I wander in saṃsāra,
for as many bodies as I take birth in,
for that long may I make offerings to the Protector,
and may I gather accumulations through bodily engagement.

For as long as I wander in saṃsāra,
for as many words as I utter,
for that long may I recite the Protector's name,
and may I gather accumulations through verbal engagement.

For as long as I wander in saṃsāra,
for as many thoughts as arise in my mind,
for that long may I recollect the Protector,
and may I gather accumulations through mental engagement.

Thus, having made the Powerful Lord of Compassion the support through body, speech, and mind,
may body, speech, and mind be free of faults,
and may they come to be endowed with excellent qualities.

Thus, having constantly engaged, through body, speech, and mind, with the body, speech, and mind of the Powerful Lord of Compassion, Avalokiteśvara, the Powerful Lord of Compassion,
the sole refuge and hope of the three realms of existence,
whose qualities are inconceivable —
may I too become accomplished just like him, and may I bring the hopes of the three realms of existence to complete fulfillment.

Homage to the Three Jewels. Homage to noble Avalokiteśvara, the bodhisattva, the great being, the great compassionate one. Thus: Oṃ cakravartī, cintāmaṇi mahāpadme ruru tiṣṭha jvala ākarṣaya hūṃ phaṭ svāhā.
This completes the root mantra.

Oṃ padme cintāmaṇi jvala hūṃ. This is the essence mantra.

Oṃ bharata padme hūṃ. This is the close-essence mantra.

Oṃ maṇi—

Translator's Notes

- The final line is cut off mid-mantra ("Oṃ maṇi—"), evidently continuing into the well-known "oṃ maṇi padme hūṃ," but the source text breaks off here; this has been preserved as given rather than completed. Mantric syllables (Sanskrit transliterations) have been left untranslated per standard practice, as they are ritual utterances rather than semantic prose. The epithet "ॐ वसुधैव कुटुम्बकम्" (Lord/Powerful Lord of Compassion) is a well-known epithet of Avalokiteśvara and has been rendered descriptively rather than with a fixed Sanskrit gloss, since it is not identical to the Śiva epithet Maheśvara despite superficial resemblance in title.

Colophon

This is an AI-generated translation from the AI Stupa project. It was produced by a careful, doctrine-aware process aiming at a high degree of accuracy, but it has not been reviewed by a human translator and may contain errors. It is offered as a provisional translation for those texts of the Tibetan Buddhist canon that have not yet received an authoritative human translation. Where a published translation exists — above all from 84000: Translating the Words of the Buddha (84000.co) — that translation is definitive and should be preferred; please consult it instead. These translations are released into the public domain (CC0) in the spirit of spreading the Dharma to all corners of the earth.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.

May whoever encounters these words derive great benefit.