The noble dhāraṇī known in Tibetan as Shes rab kyi pha rol tu phyin pa stong phrag brgya pa'i gzungs and in Sanskrit as the Śatasāhasrikāprajñāpāramitādhāraṇī — the Dhāraṇī of the Perfection of Wisdom in One Hundred Thousand Verses — is a short dhāraṇī text belonging to the broader Prajñāpāramitā, or Perfection of Wisdom, tradition. It presents a series of mantra formulas whose recitation or retention is said to confer upon the practitioner the merit and wisdom equivalent to holding the vast one-hundred-thousand-verse Perfection of Wisdom scripture in its entirety. The text appears immediately after the conclusion of the Six Syllables vidyā-mantra, suggesting it formed part of a cluster of related dhāraṇī and mantra texts within the collection. It is Toh 576 in the Kangyur, catalogued among the dhāraṇī class of texts.

— and with gods, asuras, and gandharvas, the world rejoiced, and those gathered praised what the Blessed One had declared.

The noble vidyā-mantra known as the Six Syllables is complete.

Homage to the Blessed Mother, the Perfection of Wisdom, the One Hundred Thousand Verse Perfection of Wisdom. The dhāraṇī of the noble Perfection of Wisdom in One Hundred Thousand Verses is as follows.

Tadyathā: Oṃ muni dharme, saṃgraha dharme, anugraha dharme, vimukti dharme, sārānugraha dharme, vaiśravaṇa parivartana dharme, sarva kārya paripramaṇa dharme, samantānuparivartani dharme svāhā. Oṃ prajñe śruti smṛti mati vijaye svāhā. Dhīḥ dhāraṇī svāhā. Oṃ prajñāpāramitā bala svāhā.

Whoever holds this dhāraṇī will come to hold the Perfection of Wisdom in One Hundred Thousand Verses. If it is recited continuously, the mind will become settled and at ease. All karmic obscurations will be purified. The Perfection of Wisdom —

Translator's Notes

- The passage opens mid-sentence, concluding a sūtra's colophon formula listing the assembly's rejoicing, and then transitions into a dhāraṇī text. The final sentence breaks off mid-phrase, indicating the source material continues beyond what was provided here. The mantra syllables are rendered as close transliterations of the Sanskrit embedded in the Tibetan, following standard dhāraṇī conventions; no semantic translation of the individual mantra phrases is given, as dhāraṇī are conventionally left untranslated.
