Toh 592 in the Kangyur is the Noble Dhāraṇī Called the Invincible White Parasol Arisen from the Uṣṇīṣa of the Tathāgata, known in Sanskrit as the Āryatathāgatoṣṇīṣasitātapatrāparājītanāmādhāraṇī and in Tibetan as the Phags pa de bzhin gshegs pa'i gtsug tor nas byung ba'i gdugs dkar po can gyi gzungs. It is a dhāraṇī text — a genre of scripture presenting sacred formulas of great protective and purificatory power — and it belongs to the broad class of tantric and incantation literature within the Kangyur. The text opens with an extended series of homages to the Three Jewels, to vast numbers of buddhas, and to the various grades of noble beings on the path to liberation, establishing the devotional and doctrinal context in which the dhāraṇī's power is grounded. This version was finalized by the paṇḍita Parahitabhadrā and the Tibetan translator Gzu Dga' Rdor, who collated their work against an old manuscript preserved at the temple of Amṛtabhava in Kashmir, attesting to the care taken in establishing an authoritative text.

In the language of India: Āryatathāgatoṣṇīṣasitātapatrāparājītanāmādhāraṇī.

In the Tibetan language: The Noble Dhāraṇī Called the Invincible White Parasol Arisen from the Uṣṇīṣa of the Tathāgata.

Homage to the Three Jewels. Homage to all the buddhas and bodhisattvas. Homage to the Buddha. Homage to the Dharma. Homage to the Saṅgha. Homage to the seventy million perfectly and completely awakened buddhas together with their assemblies of śrāvakas. Homage to all the arhats in this world. Homage to those who have entered the stream. Homage to those who return once more. Homage to those who do not return. Homage to those who have gone rightly in this world. Homage to those who have entered correctly. Homage to the divine sages who are able both to bestow benefit and to dispel curses. Homage to the accomplished vidyādhāras who hold mantra. Homage to Brahmā. Homage to Indra. Homage to the Blessed and Fierce One, the sovereign who averts ascetic practices, together with his retinue. Homage to the Blessed Nārāyaṇa, who has paid homage with the five great mudrās (seals). Homage to the Blessed Great Dark One, who destroys the triple city, who is devoted to dwelling in charnel grounds, and who is venerated by the hosts of māmo spirits. Homage to the relics of the Blessed Tathāgata. Homage to the lotus relic. Homage to the vajra relic. Homage to the jewel relic. Homage to the elephant relic. Homage to the youthful relic. Homage to the nāga relic.

Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha, Steadfast Army, King of Weapons. Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha Amitābha. Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha Akṣobhya. Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha, the Master of Healing, King of Beryl Light. Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha, King of the Sāla Tree Lords, Flowers Fully Bloomed. Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha Śākyamuni. Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha, King of the Precious Crest. Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha Samantabhadra. Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha Vairocana. Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha, Wide-Eyed King of the Fragrant Blue Lotus Crest.

Having paid homage to all of these, this great reversal called the Noble Invincible White Parasol Arisen from the Uṣṇīṣa of the Tathāgata cuts off all spirit-possession by elemental beings, severs all alien mantras and vidyās, averts untimely death, liberates all sentient beings who are bound, repels all malice, bad dreams, and evil omens, destroys eighty-four thousand harmful spirits, gladdens the twenty-eight constellations, and destroys the eight great planets.

It repels all enemies, destroys all malice, aversion, and evil dreams, and liberates from poison, weapons, fire, and water. Invincible, of great ferocity, of great might — the Great Wrathful One, of great power, great blazing splendor — the Great White One, of great power, robed in white with a garland of flames — the noble Tārā, the frowning one — renowned as the Victor's Vajra Garland — marked with the lotus emblem, marked with the vajra — the Garlanded One whom none can overcome — she who bears the vajra club and subdues — she who is worshipped by the peaceful gods — of peaceful form and of great splendor — the noble Tārā of great power — the Vajra Chain and the others — Vajra Youth, the Holder of the Lineage — Vajrapāṇi, Golden Garland of the Lineage — the Lady of Elixir and Jewels — renowned as the Illuminating Vajra Uṣṇīṣa — the Vajra of the Bound One — and she whose eyes are like golden light — Vajra Letter and the White One — Lotus Eye and Moonbeam — may all these assemblies of mudrā-bearers protect me, protect me!

O Blessed Lady, the Great Reversal White Parasol Vajra Uṣṇīṣa arisen from the uṣṇīṣa of the Tathāgata — the Great One with a thousand hands, the Great One with a thousand heads, the Great One with a hundred million eyes — bearing the mark of the indivisible blazing flame — she who with her great wide vajra rules over the maṇḍalas of the three levels of the earth — protect me, protect me from all sides!

Oṃ. From fear of kings, fear of thieves, fear of fire, fear of water, fear of poison, fear of weapons, fear of enemy armies, fear of famine, fear of foes, fear of hailstorms, fear of untimely death, fear of earthquakes, fear of falling meteors, fear of royal punishment, fear of gods, fear of nāgas, fear of lightning, fear of garuḍas (the great celestial birds), fear of fierce wild beasts — from possession by gods, possession by nāgas, possession by asuras (demigods), possession by wind-gods, possession by garuḍas, possession by gandharvas (scent-eaters), possession by kinnaras (half-human beings), possession by great serpents, possession by yakṣas, possession by rākṣasas, possession by hungry ghosts (pretas), possession by flesh-eaters, possession by elemental spirits, possession by kumbhāṇḍas (pot-bellied spirits), possession by decaying spirits, possession by spirits that cause physical decay, possession by spirits that cause emaciation, possession by spirits that cause forgetfulness, possession by spirits that cause madness, possession by spirits that cause shadow-oppression, possession by spirits that crush and oppress, possession by ḍākinīs, possession by skies-corner spirits — from all these possessions may I be well and at peace!

From those who steal one's vital luster, who feast on embryos, who feast on blood, who feast on fat, who feast on flesh, who feast on marrow, who feast on limbs, who feast on the newly born, who steal the life force, who feast on vomit, who feast on filth — from those who feast on urine, who feast on what flows down from waste-holes, who feast on leftovers, who feast on saliva, who feast on mucus, who feast on fresh mucus, who feast on pus, who feast on torma offerings, who feast on garlands, who feast on fragrance, who feast on incense smoke, who steal the mind, who feast on flowers, who feast on fruits, who feast on grain, who feast on fire-offerings — from all these may I be well and at peace!

The vidyā-mantras made by all of these, and by all possessing spirits — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by those who roam everywhere — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by ḍākas and ḍākinīs — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by the Great Lord of Cattle — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by the Son of Non-Craving — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by the true Garuḍa together with his companions — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by the Great Black One and the host of mother spirits — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by the skull-bearer — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by the Conqueror, by the Honey-Maker, and by the Accomplisher of All Goals — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by the Four Sisters — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by Bhṛṅgiriṭi, by the Bliss-Giving Lord, and by the Lord of the Assembly together with his companions — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by naked ascetics — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by arhats — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by those free from attachment — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

The vidyā-mantras made by Vajrapāṇi, Lord of Secrets — cut them! Strike with the kīla!

Homage to you, the White Parasol, born from the uṣṇīṣa of the Blessed One, the Tathāgata! I entreat you: protect me, protect me!

Whatever sentient beings harbor a mind of hatred toward me, and those who hold a mind of violence, those who steal away one's radiance, those who eat wombs as their food, those who drink blood as their food, those who eat fat as their food, those who eat flesh as their food, those who eat grease as their food, those who eat feet as their food, those who eat fetuses as their food, those who steal away life, those who eat vomit as their food, those who eat filth as their food, those who drink urine as their food, those who drink what flows down through the birth canal as their food, those who eat leftovers as their food, those who drink saliva as their food, those who eat mucus as their food, those who eat phlegm as their food, those who eat pus as their food, those who eat torma offerings as their food, those who eat garlands as their food, those who eat fragrances as their food, those who eat incense as their food, those who steal minds away, those who eat flowers as their food, those who eat fruits as their food, those who eat crops as their food, those who eat fire offerings as their food, those who hold a mind of wickedness, those who hold a mind of hatred, those who hold a mind of violence, the possessing spirits of yakṣas, the possessing spirits of rākṣasas, the possessing spirits of hungry ghosts, the possessing spirits of flesh-eaters, the possessing spirits of elementals, the possessing spirits of grulbum, the possessing spirits of corpse-demons, the possessing spirits of cadaverous-body demons, the possessing spirits that cause wasting, the possessing spirits that cause madness, the possessing spirits that oppress with shadow, the possessing spirits that cause forgetfulness, the possessing spirits that press down and crush, the possessing spirits of ḍākinīs, the possessing spirits of sky-wanderers, the possessing spirits of the Lord of Death, the possessing spirits of birds, the possessing spirits that delight the mātṛs, the possessing spirits that follow everywhere, the possessing spirits that draw out thorns — may all these be cleared away. Fevers of one day, fevers of two days, fevers of three days, fevers of four days, fevers of seven days, chronic fevers, unbearable fevers, intermittent fevers, fevers of elementals, fevers arising from wind, fevers arising from bile, fevers arising from phlegm, fevers arising from their combination — may all fevers and ailments of the head be cleared away. May pain in the side of the face, convulsions of the syllables, eye disease, nose disease, mouth disease, throat disease, heart disease, pain in the area of the kidneys, ear pain, tooth pain, heart pain, head pain, neck pain, pain in the ribs, back pain, abdominal pain, lower-back pain, bladder pain, thigh pain, knee pain, arm pain, leg pain, pain in the major limbs, and pain in the minor limbs all be cleared away.

By this great dharaṇī of repelling, the White Parasol, the Uṣṇīṣavijayā — within the range of twelve leagues, may elementals, the risen dead, ḍākinīs, fevers, scabies, ringworm, fine eruptions, leprosy, anthrax, blisters, fire-rash, rashes, sores, wasting, dryness, fright, poisoning by weapons, compounded poisons, harmful sorcery-rituals, fire, water, enemies of men, adversaries, harm, untimely death, the insect treykhuka, the insect trailatāka, wickedness, snakes, scorpions, lions, tigers, bears, brown bears, crocodiles, those that snatch away the life of others like hornets — the mantras of all these shall be bound. Their power shall be bound. The mantras of others shall be bound. Thus it is: Oṃ anale anale, viṣade viṣade, vaira vaira, vajradhāri, bandha bandhani, vajrapāṇi phaṭ hūṃ hūṃ phaṭ phaṭ svāhā. Hūṃ drūṃ bandha phaṭ mama rakṣa rakṣa svāhā.

Whoever writes this great dhāraṇī of repelling, the White Parasol, born from the uṣṇīṣa of the Tathāgata, that which none can oppose — whether on birch bark, on cloth, or on the bark of a tree — and wears it on the body or around the neck, for as long as they live poison shall not harm them, weapons shall not harm them, fire shall not harm them, water shall not harm them, weapon-poisons shall not harm them, compounded poisons shall not harm them, sorcery shall not harm them, and no cause of untimely death shall arise. All spirits, obstructors, and misleading demons shall become pleased and delighted with that person. Eighty-four thousand myriads of hundreds of thousands of members of the vajra family shall guard, protect, and shelter that person, and through their delight they shall be filled with joy. For eighty-four thousand great aeons one shall recall past lives. Never again shall one become a yakṣa, a rākṣasa (Skt. rākṣasa), a hungry ghost, a zombie, or a putrefying corpse. One shall never become poor. One shall come to possess a heap of merit equal to the grains of sand of as many Ganges rivers as there are innumerable and immeasurable buddhas, Blessed Ones.

Whoever holds this great dhāraṇī of repelling, the White Parasol, born from the uṣṇīṣa of the Tathāgata, that which none can oppose — even one who has not lived the holy celibate life shall be as one who has lived it. Even one who has not been restrained shall be as one who has been restrained. Even one who is impure shall become pure. Even one who has not observed the fasting vow shall be as one who has observed it. Even one who has not undertaken the practice of fasting shall be as one who has undertaken it. Even one who has committed the five acts of immediate retribution shall be purified of that evil. All karmic obscurations from former lives shall, without exception, be completely purified.

Any woman who desires a child and holds this great dhāraṇī of repelling, the White Parasol, born from the uṣṇīṣa of the Tathāgata, that which none can oppose — that woman who desires a child shall obtain one, and shall abundantly obtain long life, merit, and strength as well. After passing from this life, she shall be reborn in the world-realm of Sukhāvatī.

Against all human disease, disease of livestock, plague, epidemic illness, harm, contagion, injury, strife, and the coming of enemy armies — this great dhāraṇī of repelling, the White Parasol, born from the uṣṇīṣa of the Tathāgata, that which none can oppose, should be attached to the top of a victory banner, great ceremonies of honor should be performed, great offerings made, and it should be erected at the gates of all towns, in villages, in cities, in market towns, in provinces, or at the sites of hermitages. This great dhāraṇī of repelling, that which none can oppose, having been erected with great ceremony, will immediately bring warfare to peace. Epidemic illness, harm, contagion, injury, strife, and the coming of enemy armies shall all be utterly pacified.

Thus it is: Oṃ ṣṭoṃ bandha bandha mama rakṣa rakṣa svāhā. Oṃ hūṃ ṣṭoṃ bandha bandha vajra mama rakṣa rakṣa vajrapāṇi hūṃ hūṃ phaṭ svāhā. Oṃ sarvatathāgatoṣṇīṣa anāvalokitamūrdhani tejorāśi, oṃ hūṃ jvala jvala, dhaka dhaka, dara dara, vidara vidara, chinda chinda, bhinda bhinda, hūṃ hūṃ phaṭ phaṭ svāhā. Oṃ sarvatathāgatoṣṇīṣa hūṃ phaṭ svāhā.

Thus it is: Oṃ anale anale, khasame khasame, vaire vaire, saume saume, sarva buddha adhiṣṭhāna adhiṣṭhita, sarvatathāgatoṣṇīṣa sitātapatre hūṃ phaṭ. Hūṃ mama hūṃ ni svāhā.

Let one practice the yoga of the buddhas. The kings of the nāgas shall, at the proper times, send down rain. The noble White Umbrella arisen from the uṣṇīṣa of the Tathāgata —

Translator's Notes

- The colophon names the translator as "Gzu Dga' Rdor," a contracted form, likely Gzu dGa' ba'i rdo rje. The temple name rendered as "Amṛtabhava" (Tibetan: bdud rtsi 'byung gnas) in Kashmir is a Sanskrit reconstruction based on the Tibetan. The phrase "divine sages who dispel curses" refers to brahminical ṛṣis credited with both harmful and beneficial mantra power, a standard motif in this genre of dhāraṇī literature. The "Blessed Fierce One, sovereign who averts ascetic practices" is almost certainly Śiva in his Rudra aspect, paired with his retinue. The "Blessed Nārāyaṇa who paid homage with the five great mudrās" is a well-attested formula in Uṣṇīṣasitātapatrā literature. The "King of Weapons, Steadfast Army" (dpa' brtan pa'i sde mtshon cha'i rgyal po) is a less commonly cited buddha name; the rendering follows the Tibetan literally.
- The epithets in the verse section list a series of wrathful and semi-wrathful goddess figures associated with Tārā and the Uṣṇīṣa Sitātapatra cycle. Several names resist fully transparent rendering because they function as tantric epithets rather than descriptive phrases; the translation renders their literal meaning while preserving the liturgical character.

The term rendered "skies-corner spirits" for nam gru'i gdon is unusual. Nam gru likely refers to spirits of the cardinal or intermediate directions of the sky; this rendering is provisional.

The passage ends mid-sentence in the Tibetan provided; the translation reflects this.

- The passage is from the Uṣṇīṣasitātapatrā dhāraṇī cycle. The mantra section from "Om asitānalārka" onward is a transliteration of Sanskrit mantric syllables into Tibetan script; these are rendered here by reconstructing the underlying Sanskrit forms as closely as the Tibetan orthography permits, following standard scholarly editions of this dhāraṇī. Minor orthographic variations in the Tibetan are expected and do not affect the reconstruction materially.

"The Great Lord of Cattle" renders རྒྱལ་ལོ་ལྷ་མོ་ལྷ་མོ་, a title that in this apotropaic context designates Śiva in his form as Paśupati, lord of animals and herdsmen.

"The Son of Non-Craving" renders རྒྱལ་ལོ་ལྷ་མོ་ལྷ་མོ་, a standard Tibetan gloss for Indra (Śakra), whose name is etymologized as "son of non-craving" in the Tibetan tradition.

"Bhṛṅgiriṭi" is one of Śiva's attendants; "the Bliss-Giving Lord" is Nandīśvara; "the Lord of the Assembly" is Gaṇeśa — all members of Śiva's retinue invoked here for their mantra-authority to be ritually severed.

- The Tibetan passage is a continuation of a Sanskrit dhāraṇī text interleaved with Tibetan prose. The opening lines are Sanskrit mantric vocatives rendered in Tibetan transliteration and are kept in romanized Sanskrit in the translation, consistent with the preceding passage.

The term grulbum is a specific class of demon in Tibetan demonology with no standard Sanskrit equivalent; it is left in transliteration. Similarly srul po and lus srul po denote classes of zombie or corpse-animated spirits; these are rendered descriptively.

The insects treykhuka and trailatāka are transliterations of Sanskrit terms for specific harmful creatures that are not fully identified in the commentarial literature; they are kept in transliteration.

The phrase yi ga 'chus pa is literally "convulsion or contortion of the syllables," likely referring to a condition affecting speech or the jaw; it is rendered descriptively.

The passage ends mid-enumeration as the source text provided is incomplete at that point.

- The term rendered "zombie" and "putrefying corpse" translates two distinct Tibetan terms: the first refers to a reanimated corpse-spirit and the second to a body that undergoes putrefaction. The distinction is doctrinal in the Tibetan ritual context, marking two separate categories of unfortunate rebirth or possession-state.

The five acts of immediate retribution are the five heinous actions that lead to immediate rebirth in the lowest hell: killing one's father, killing one's mother, killing an arhat, wounding a buddha, and causing a schism in the Saṅgha.

The mantra syllables are transliterated as they appear in the Tibetan phonetic rendering of Sanskrit; no attempt has been made to normalize them beyond standard transliteration.

- The phrase "sarva buddha adhiṣṭhāna adhiṣṭhita" is a standard dhāraṇī formula meaning "consecrated by the consecration of all buddhas." The line "Let one practice the yoga of the buddhas" renders a brief Tibetan instruction embedded between mantra passages, indicating a contemplative practice instruction. The passage ends mid-sentence, introducing the White Umbrella (Sitātapatrā) deity, consistent with the Uṣṇīṣa Sitātapatrā dhāraṇī context running throughout this text.
