

The Ritual of the Single-Syllable Mantra of Noble Mañjuśrī

Āryamañjuśrīyaikākṣaramantravidhi · Toh 550 · Derge Kangyur

འཕགས་པ་འཇམ་དཔལ་གཏི་ལྷན་ཡ་གི་འབྲུ་ཅག་པའི་ཆོ་གོ།

Toh 550 in the Kangyur is a short ritual text known in Tibetan as "Phags pa 'Jam dpal gyi sngags yi ge 'bru gcig pa'i cho ga" and in Sanskrit as the "Ekākṣaramantravidhi of Noble Mañjuśrī," concerning the single-syllable secret mantra "Om Kṣmīṃ" associated with the bodhisattva Mañjuśrī. The text belongs to the class of dhāraṇī and mantra literature found in the Kangyur and follows directly after a related dhāraṇī concerned with the growth of wisdom and intelligence through Mañjuśrī. It is a practical ritual manual describing the mantra's supreme efficacy as the heart-essence of all the Tathāgatas and providing specific instructions for its application in healing ailments such as toothache, eye disease, and wounds caused by weapons. As such, it sits among the collections of dhāraṇī and tantric ritual texts in the Kangyur, reflecting the broader tradition of using sacred syllables and mantra recitation for both spiritual and worldly benefit.

This concludes the dhāraṇī called "The Growth of Wisdom and Intelligence through the Noble Mañjuśrī."

The Ritual of the Single-Syllable Mantra of Noble Mañjuśrī.

The mantra is as follows: Tadyathā — Om Kṣmīṃ.

This single-syllable secret mantra is supremely secret. It accomplishes all aims. It performs all actions. It is the heart-essence of all the Tathāgatas. It completely fulfils all hopes.

If one recites the mantra over a tooth-cleaning twig and holds it in the mouth, toothache will be relieved.

If one recites the mantra seven times over rock salt applied to a diseased eye and fills the eye with it, the eye disease will be cleared.

If a fragment of a weapon remains lodged in a person's body, one should recite the mantra seven times, or one hundred and eight times, over aged clarified butter, and then either pour it in or rub it onto the wound; the fragment of the weapon will come out.

For indigestion, bloating and pressure in the abdomen, and diarrhea caused by fever, one should recite the mantra seven times over ordinary salt, or rock salt, or any other kind of salt, and eat it; one will be freed from that illness and recover on that very same day.

For headache, one should recite the mantra seven times over a crow's feather and brush it over the affected area; that illness will be healed.

The single-syllable mantra of Mañjuśrī —

Translator's Notes

- The passage breaks off mid-sentence at the end, as the source text is incomplete at this point. The term rendered "ordinary salt" for མཚན་མོ་མཚན་མོ་ refers to a common unrefined salt, distinct from the rock salt (མཚན་མོ་མཚན་མོ་) and other named varieties listed alongside it.

Colophon

This is an AI-generated translation from the AI Stupa project. It was produced by a careful, doctrine-aware process aiming at a high degree of accuracy, but it has not been reviewed by a human translator and may contain errors. It is offered as a provisional translation for those texts of the Tibetan Buddhist canon that have not yet received an authoritative human translation. Where a published translation exists — above all from 84000: Translating the Words of the Buddha (84000.co) — that translation is definitive and should be preferred; please consult it instead. These translations are released into the public domain (CC0) in the spirit of spreading the Dharma to all corners of the earth.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.

May whoever encounters these words derive great benefit.