Toh 734 in the Kangyur is a dhāraṇī text known in Sanskrit as the Ārya-vijayavatī-nāma-pratyāṅgirā and in Tibetan as Phyir zlog pa 'phags pa rnam par rgyal ba can, rendered in English as the Repelling Dhāraṇī Called the Noble Victorious One. It belongs to the dhāraṇī and mantra literature of the Kangyur, a class of texts concerned with the recitation of sacred formulas believed to confer protection and avert harm. The text is devoted to a powerful repelling dhāraṇī said to subdue harmful sorcery, dispel curses, pacify inauspicious forces, and ward off a wide range of fears and dangers, making it a practical ritual text oriented toward the protection of all beings. It opens with a series of homages to the buddhas, bodhisattvas, knowledge-mantra holders, the Three Jewels, and in particular the bodhisattva Avalokiteśvara, situating it firmly within the Mahāyāna devotional and protective tradition.

In the language of India: Ārya-vijayavatī-nāma-pratyāṅgirā. In the language of Tibet: the Repelling Dhāraṇī Called the Noble Victorious One.

Homage to all the buddhas and bodhisattvas, and to all who are earnestly devoted to protecting every being. Homage to all the accomplished ones. Homage to all who hold the knowledge-mantras. Homage to the Buddha. Homage to the Dharma. Homage to the Saṅgha. Homage to the noble Avalokiteśvara, the bodhisattva and great being endowed with great compassion.

Having paid homage to them all, what is now to be proclaimed is the Repelling Dhāraṇī Called the Victorious One — which subdues harmful sorcery and dispels curses; which utterly pacifies zombies and all inauspiciousness; which wards off the fear of kings, the fear of thieves, the fear of fire, the fear of water, the fear of dākinīs, the fear of hungry ghosts, the fear of flesh-eaters, the fear of vase-spirits, the fear of shadow-oppressors, the fear of amnesia-spirits, the fear of corpse-spirits, the fear of bodily decay-spirits, wrong paths, the fear encountered while traveling on the road, and the particular fears of beings who travel by day and by night — which dulls and confounds them, which brings confusion, which makes the complexion radiant, which causes enthusiasm and joy to increase perfectly, which repels all enemies, which utterly pacifies all obstructors and misleading spirits, which perfectly purifies all evil, which silences the mouth, which opens the mouth, which makes the face beautiful.

Homage to the noble Avalokiteśvara, the bodhisattva and great being endowed with great compassion. May these foundations of the secret mantra be accomplished.

Thus: Oṃ dhara dhara. dhara dhara. dhara dhara. dhara. dhiri dhiri. dhiri dhiri. dhiri dhiri. dhiri. dhuru dhuru. dhuru dhuru. dhuru dhuru. dhuru. I beseech you, protect me from all fear, all harm, all harmful sorcery, and all curses. Protect, protect.

Thus: sara sara. sara sara. sara sara. sara sara. sara. siri siri. siri siri. siri siri. siri. suru suru. suru suru. suru suru. suru. mara mara. mara mara. mara mara. mara. miri miri. miri miri. miri miri. miri. muru muru. muru muru. muru muru. muru. I beseech you, protect me from all illness. Protect, protect.

Thus: hili hili. hili hili. hili hili. hili hili. hili. hulu hulu. hulu hulu. hulu hulu. hulu. kili kili. kili kili. kili kili. kili kili. kili. mili mili. mili mili. mili mili. mili. cili cili. cili cili. cili cili. cili. culu culu. culu culu. culu culu. culu. I beseech you, act to reverse all spirits.

Oṃ visara visara. kampa kampa. nāśaya nāśaya. May all those enemies who wish me harm, who threaten me, who intend to injure me, who perform spells, who perform fire-offerings against me, who commission such acts, and who rejoice in what has been done — may all of that return upon themselves. Svāhā.

The eyes of all adversaries are bound. Their ears are bound. Their noses are bound. Their tongues are bound. Their bodies are bound. Their minds are bound. All their limbs, major and minor, are bound. Sphuṭa sphuṭa sphuṭa. Sphoṭaya sphoṭaya sphoṭaya. I beseech you, completely remove, completely destroy, and completely annihilate all harmful sorcery and curses.

Sarva śatrūṃ. turu turu. turu turu. turu turu. turu svāhā.

I beseech you, protect me from all fear, all harm, all harmful sorcery, all curses, all zombies, and all amnesia-spirits.

Protect me. Svāhā. I beseech you, completely remove all my misdeeds. Completely remove them. Cara cara svāhā. Mara mara svāhā. Siri siri svāhā. Kuru kuru svāhā. Dhuru dhuru svāhā. Dhuru dhuru. Dhuru dhuru. Dhuru svāhā.

Those who wish to harm me and have no wish to help me — may all their gazes upon me be stupefied, bewildered, confused, and deluded.

O Lady who commands all spirits, all possessing influences, and all diseases — confuse them, delude them, stupefy them, bewilder them, terrify them, utterly terrify them, utterly scatter them, utterly destroy them. Svāhā.

Nīle nīle, nīlakeśe svāhā. Pīte pīte, pītakeśe svāhā. Lohite lohite, lohitakeśe svāhā. Avadate avadate, avadātakeśe svāhā. Śvete śvete, śvetavastradhāraṇīye svāhā.

O Lady who holds dominion over all spirits, I beseech you, completely remove all my misdeeds. Svāhā.

O Lady who causes increase, I beseech you, cause all my glory and good fortune to grow and multiply. Svāhā.

I beseech you, protect me from all fear and harm, from contagious illness, from all conflict, from all assailants, from all sorcery, from all disease, from all possessing influences, from all misdeeds, from faults of diet, from faults of meditation, from obstructing harm, and from all evil omens. Protect me. Svāhā.

The victorious one who repels all — whosoever speaks of the arising of victors in this way, and whosoever wears this around the neck: that one will become victorious, without doubt. Sins, evil dreams, and bad omens, kings, fire, thieves, and enemies — none of these can prevail against such a one. Whosoever wears this around the neck will not be carried away by water. All misdeeds will be perfectly purified.

Translator's Notes

- The terms translated as "zombie" render the Tibetan ro lang, literally "risen corpse," a recognized category of undead being in the Indo-Tibetan ritual tradition.

The phrase rendered "vase-spirits" translates grul bum, a class of harmful entities associated with ritual vessels; the exact nature varies by commentary.

The phrase "shadow-oppressors" translates grib gnon, spirits or forces that bring ritual pollution or shadow-borne oppression. "Amnesia-spirits" translates brjed byed, literally "that which causes forgetting," a class of harmful entity that induces forgetfulness or mental dissociation.

The mantra syllables throughout are transliterated as they appear and are not semantically translated, as is standard practice for dhāraṇī texts.

The Sanskrit title in the colophon, Ārya-vijayavatī-nāma-pratyāṅgirā, identifies this as a pratyāṅgirā-type dhāraṇī — a class of texts specifically designed to repel and reverse harmful spells directed at the practitioner.

- The passage contains several sequences of colored-hair epithets in Sanskrit, likely invoking a multi-hued goddess: nīlakeśe (blue-haired), pītakeśe (yellow-haired), lohitaśeśe (red-haired), avadātakeśe (white-haired). These are left in transliterated Sanskrit as they function as dhāraṇī-style invocations within the ritual text.

The final verse section shifts register entirely, functioning as a praise-and-promise stanza common to dhāraṇī texts, assuring the wearer of the text's protective efficacy. "Victorious one who repels all" renders विजयते सर्वं and "the arising of victors" renders विजयते; the latter phrase is somewhat cryptic and may refer to the teaching concerning the coming of buddhas or the proclamation of their arising, a common dhāraṇī motif.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.
