

The Recollection of the Heart of All the Tathāgatas

Sarvatathāgatahṛdayānusmṛti · Toh 869 · Derge Kangyur

The Recollection of the Heart of All the Tathāgatas (in Sanskrit, Sarvatathāgatahṛdayānusmṛti, though the Tibetan title line given here does not state it) is a very short dhāraṇī text, consisting of a single mantra followed by a statement of its benefit. The mantra opens with homage to the hearts of all the tathāgatas and concludes with the syllables "oṃ kuruṃgini svāhā." The brief colophon-like promise that follows declares that reciting it even once exhausts the obscurations of karma accumulated over eight hundred million eons. It belongs to the genre of protective and purificatory spells, a type of text that circulates widely in Buddhist practice for the removal of karmic hindrances. It is Toh 869 in the Kangyur, where it is classed among the tantra section's dhāraṇī texts.

Namaḥ sarva tathāgata hṛdaya anugate oṃ kuruṃgini svāhā.

By reciting this even once, even the obscurations of karma accumulated over eight hundred million eons will be exhausted.

Here ends the Recollection of the Heart of All the Tathāgatas.

Translator's Notes

- The mantra is given in romanized Sanskrit following the Tibetan transcription. "Kuruṃgini" follows the Tibetan spelling and may reflect a variant of a form such as "kuraṅgiṇi." The figure "eight hundred million" renders "eight thousand times one hundred thousand" eons.

It was produced by a careful, doctrine-aware process aiming at a high degree of accuracy, but it has not been reviewed by a human translator and may contain errors. It is offered as a provisional translation for those texts of the Tibetan Buddhist canon that have not yet received an authoritative human translation. Where a published translation exists — above all from 84000: Translating the Words of the Buddha (84000.co) — that translation is definitive and should be preferred; please consult it instead. Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.

May whoever encounters these words derive great benefit.
