

Toh 526 in the Kangyur is a dhāraṇī text known in Tibetan as "Phags pa sgo mtha'

Toh 526 · Derge Kangyur

Toh 526 in the Kangyur is a dhāraṇī text known in Tibetan as "Phags pa sgo mtha' yas pas bsgrub pa" and in Sanskrit as the "Ārya Anantamukhasādhaka," rendered into English as "The Noble Accomplishment Through Boundless Gates." It belongs to the dhāraṇī section of the Kangyur, a class of texts centered on sacred verbal formulas believed to confer protection and spiritual benefit. The text presents the Buddha teaching a dhāraṇī called "The Six Gates" to an assembly of bodhisattvas gathered in a jewel-adorned space above a monastery courtyard, framing the practice as a means of alleviating suffering for all beings wandering through saṃsāra. As is characteristic of dhāraṇī scriptures, it combines a narrative setting drawn from sūtra convention with the transmission of a potent ritual formula intended for the benefit and happiness of all sentient beings.

The world with its gods, humans, asuras, and gandharvas rejoiced and praised what the Blessed One had declared.

The dhāraṇī called "The Noble Accomplishment Through Boundless Gates" is complete.

Homage to the youthful Mañjuśrī.

Thus did I hear. At one time the Blessed One was dwelling in the sky above the open courtyard of a monastery, in a space adorned with an arrangement of seven kinds of precious jewels, together with an innumerable assembly of bodhisattvas.

At that time the Blessed One declared to the bodhisattvas: Sons of good family, for the benefit and happiness of all beings, take up this dhāraṇī called "The Six Gates." It is as follows.

May whatever suffering I have experienced as I wander from birth to birth in saṃsāra not become the characteristic of failing to recognize equality with all sentient beings.

May whatever worldly prosperity and happiness I have enjoyed be shared in common with all sentient beings.

May whatever sinful and non-virtuous actions I have committed be confessed individually through the supreme individual confession, and may none remain unconfessed.

May whatever deeds of māra I have performed be fully known through the supreme full knowledge, and may none remain unknown.

May all the roots of virtue I possess, whether worldly or transcendent, arising from the perfections, become the fruit of the unsurpassed primordial wisdom.

May whatever liberation I have attained bring about the complete liberation of all sentient beings.

May I not remain fixed in either saṃsāra or nirvāṇa.

Tadyathā: om kṣame kṣame, kṣānte kṣānte, dame dame, dānte dānte, bhadre bhadre, subhadre subhadre, candre candre, sucandre sucandre, candrakiraṇi, candravatī, tejovatī, yaśovatī, dharmavatī, brahmavatī, sarvakleśaviśodhani, sarvārthasādhani, sarvārthaśamanī, paramārthasādhani, kāyaviśodhani, vākviśodhani, manaḥsaṃśodhani svāhā.

Sons of good family, therefore, if any son of good family or daughter of good family recites this dhāraṇī called "The Six Gates" three times by day and three times by night, all the karmic obscurations they have accumulated will be purified, and for seven lifetimes hence they will remember their former lives. They will then come to full and perfect awakening in the unsurpassed, completely perfect enlightenment.

The Blessed One, pleased, having declared these words, the assembled bodhisattvas and the sons of the gods of the pure realms rejoiced and praised what the Blessed One had declared.

Translator's Notes

- The passage is a colophon followed immediately by a second, related dhāraṇī text, the Ārya-ṣaṇmukha-nāma-dhāraṇī ("The Noble Six-Gates Dhāraṇī"), indicating these are two successive texts in the canon. The first colophon closes the "Boundless Gates" dhāraṇī; the second text begins with its own full opening formula. The mantra syllables are rendered in reconstructed Sanskrit transliteration as they appear in the Tibetan phonetic transcription; minor phonetic variations from standard Sanskrit are as found in the canonical text and have not been normalized.

Colophon

This is an AI-generated translation from the AI Stupa project. It was produced by a careful, doctrine-aware process aiming at a high degree of accuracy, but it has not been reviewed by a human translator and may contain errors. It is offered as a provisional translation for those texts of the Tibetan Buddhist canon that have not yet received an authoritative human translation. Where a published translation exists — above all from 84000: Translating the Words of the Buddha (84000.co) — that translation is definitive and should be preferred; please consult it instead. These translations are released into the public domain (CC0) in the spirit of spreading the Dharma to all corners of the earth.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.

May whoever encounters these words derive great benefit.