Toh 587 in the Kangyur is a brief dhāraṇī text known in Tibetan as "Phags pa rma bya chen mo'i snying po," which translates into English as "The Essence of the Noble Great Peacock," corresponding to the Sanskrit Mahāmāyūrī-hṛdaya. It belongs to the dhāraṇī section of the Kangyur, a class of texts preserving short, potent ritual formulae held to confer protection and spiritual benefit on those who memorize or recite them. This particular text presents the seed-essence or heart dhāraṇī of the Great Peacock, a celebrated protective deity associated with the longer Mahāmāyūrī dhāraṇī cycle, and its transmission here is immediately followed by the opening of a related text devoted to the great queen of wisdom Mahāpratisarā. The text is thus a concise liturgical formula rather than a discursive scripture, and its placement in the canon reflects the Kangyur's extensive collection of dhāraṇī and mantra literature.

The dhāraṇī of the preceding text is complete.

Homage to the Three Jewels. Homage to the unobstructed Teacher of all buddhas.

Oṃ piśuni svāhā.

Whoever holds this will come to hold the essence of the noble Great Peacock. The essence of the noble Great Peacock is complete.

Homage to the Three Jewels.

Namaḥ samanta-buddhānāṃ apratihata-śāsanānāṃ. Oṃ maṇi-dhari vajriṇi mahā-pratisare hūṃ hūṃ phaṭ phaṭ svāhā.

Whoever holds this will come to hold the noble great queen of wisdom, Mahāpratisarā. The dhāraṇī that enables one to come to hold the noble great Mahāpratisarā is complete.

Translator's Notes

- The passage is a colophon-and-opening sequence, closing one dhāraṇī text (the Mahāmāyūrī, "Great Peacock") and opening another (the Mahāpratisarā, "Great Following" or "Great Amulet Queen"). The Sanskrit dhāraṇī syllables are transliterated from Tibetan script and rendered here in normalized Sanskrit form as they stand; their Tibetan orthography is approximate. "Apratihata-śāsanānāṃ" means "of those whose teaching is unobstructed," qualifying the buddhas; this is reflected in the homage rendered for the preceding phrase. The epithet "ཡེ་ཤེས་ཀྱི་མཆོག་" (queen of wisdom, or vidyārājñī) applied to Mahāpratisarā is a standard tantric designation and is folded into the translation rather than rendered as a parenthetical interruption, since the name Mahāpratisarā itself follows immediately.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.
