The Noble Dhāraṇī Called "Circumambulating the Support of the Three Jewels" (Tibetan: 'Phags pa dkon mchog gi rten la bskor ba bya ba'i gzungs; Sanskrit: Ārya-ratnatraya-pradakṣiṇa-nāma-dhāraṇī) is a short dhāraṇī text, a brief mantra-formula presented as spoken by the Buddha Śākyamuni. It concerns a practice of recitation that stands in for physically circumambulating the Three Jewels (the Buddha, the Dharma, and the Saṅgha), and it promises that a single recitation pays homage to the Three Jewels of the ten directions and three times, purifies negative deeds accumulated since beginningless time, and brings swift awakening, along with protection from enemies and obstructors. The text is Toh 776 in the Kangyur, where it belongs to the Tantra section as one of the many dhāraṇī texts gathered there.

It is completed.

In the Sanskrit language: Ārya-ratnatraya-pradakṣiṇa-nāma-dhāraṇī. In the Tibetan language: The Noble Dhāraṇī Called "Circumambulating the Support of the Three Jewels."

Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and completely awakened buddha, Śākyamuni.

Oṃ namo daśa-dik-trikāla sarva-ratna-trayāya, mama pratyakṣa supratyakṣa, sarva-pāpaṃ viśodhani svāhā.

By reciting this dhāraṇī just once, one will have paid homage to, and circumambulated, the Three Jewels of the ten directions and the three times. All the negative deeds accumulated since beginningless time will be purified. One will swiftly attain the awakening of a buddha. Enemies and obstructors

Translator's Notes

- The passage breaks off mid-sentence after "enemies and obstructors," so the translation ends there. The Tibetan transliteration of the mantra is corrupt in places, so the Sanskrit given here is a tentative reconstruction. The syllables "pra-dakṣa su-pra-dakṣa" most likely stand for "pradakṣiṇa" or similar, while "pratyakṣa" is my best guess for "pra-dakṣa" in the mantra. The mantra is not translated, as is customary for dhāraṇīs. The Sanskrit title, as given in the text, reads "Ārya-brada-kṣāra-trātra-yāya-nāma-dhāraṇī," which I have restored as

"Ārya-ratnatraya-pradakṣiṇa-nāma-dhāraṇī" to match the Tibetan title.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.
