

The Dhāraṇī That Thoroughly Calms the Burning Pain of Fire

Toh 799 · Derge Kangyur

མའེ་བྱུ་ར་རྒྱལ་ཏུ་ཞུ་བའི་བདེ་པའི་གླིང་པུ་མ།

The Dhāraṇī That Thoroughly Calms the Burning Pain of Fire is a very short protective formula preserved in Tibetan translation; no Sanskrit title is given in the source lines, so the original title is uncertain. The text opens with a homage to the cooling deity of the waters and then presents a brief mantra, "Oṃ bhramaṇi bhramaṇi, jhari bhramaṇi svāhā," with the instruction that it be recited a number of times. As its name indicates, it concerns the relief of burning pain caused by fire, and it belongs to the practical, everyday genre of dhāraṇī and mantra texts used for healing and protection. It is Toh 799 in the Kangyur, the Tibetan canon of the Buddha's word, where it is classed among the tantras and the collections of dhāraṇīs.

Here the mantra is complete.

The dhāraṇī that thoroughly calms the burning pain of fire.

I prostrate to the cooling deity of the waters.

Oṃ bhramaṇi bhramaṇi, jhari bhramaṇi svāhā.

Recite this a number of times

Translator's Notes

- The passage breaks off mid-sentence at the end, so the final words are rendered only as far as the Tibetan allows; the continuation presumably gives the number of repetitions and the ritual use, but the text is incomplete here. The mantra is given in the form the Tibetan transliteration suggests; the syllables bhrama-ṇi and jhari are reconstructed from a Tibetan rendering and are uncertain, so the Sanskrit orthography may differ from the original source. The opening phrase "Here the mantra is complete" belongs to the end of the preceding text and is retained only because it appears in the passage given.

Colophon

This is an AI-generated translation from the AI Stupa project. It was produced by a careful, doctrine-aware process aiming at a high degree of accuracy, but it has not been reviewed by a human translator and may contain errors. It is offered as a provisional translation for those texts of the Tibetan Buddhist canon that have not yet received an authoritative human translation. Where a published translation exists — above all from 84000: Translating the Words of the Buddha (84000.co) — that translation is definitive and should be preferred; please consult it instead. These translations are released into the public domain (CC0) in the spirit of spreading the Dharma to all corners of the earth.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.

May whoever encounters these words derive great benefit.