The Dhāraṇī That Pacifies Anger

Toh 1025 · Derge Kangyur
ཁར་བྱོ་ཞེས་བའི་པད་གཟུངས།

The Dhāraṇī That Pacifies Anger, known in Tibetan as Khro ba zhi bar byed pa'i gzungs, is a very brief ritual text centered on a single mantra invoking the Blessed One to subdue, stupefy, and calm all wrath. After an opening homage to the Three Jewels, it gives the mantra and a simple instruction: sitting facing east, one recites it, wipes one's face seven times with one's own hand, and then enters a gathering, whereupon those who are angry will become joyful. Its practical aim is to dissolve hostility and bring harmony to social encounters. The work is Toh 1025 in the Kangyur, where it belongs among the collection of dhāraṇī texts, the short incantations and protective formulas preserved in the Tibetan canon.

Homage to the Three Jewels!

oṃ bagabace jaṃbhani stoṃbhani mohani sarbaroṣapraśamani svāhā

If one sits facing east, recites this mantra, wipes one's face seven times with one's own hand, and then goes into an assembly, those who are angry will become joyful.

The Dhāraṇī That Pacifies Anger is complete.

Colophon

This is an AI-generated translation from the AI Stupa project. It was produced by a careful, doctrine-aware process aiming at a high degree of accuracy, but it has not been reviewed by a human translator and may contain errors. It is offered as a provisional translation for those texts of the Tibetan Buddhist canon that have not yet received an authoritative human translation. Where a published translation exists — above all from 84000: Translating the Words of the Buddha (84000.co) — that translation is definitive and should be preferred; please consult it instead. These translations are released into the public domain (CC0) in the spirit of spreading the Dharma to all corners of the earth.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.

May whoever encounters these words derive great benefit.