

The Dhāraṇī for Curing the Sickness of Indigestion

Toh 785 · Derge Kangyur

མ་ཞུ་བྱའི་ནི་ད་འབད་བའི་གི་ཟུམ།

This short text, whose Tibetan title is not separately given but which follows immediately after the "Dhāraṇī for Curing the Sickness of Indigestion" in the collection, is a dhāraṇī text belonging to the genre of protective and healing incantations found in the Kangyur. It opens with homage to the Three Jewels and to a buddha called the All-Seeing One, followed by a mantra to be recited seven times, and it appears to invoke Mañjuśrī in connection with its ritual application. Such texts typically combine a brief homage, a dhāraṇī or mantra formula, and instructions for its ritual use—here linked to curing illness—reflecting the practical, apotropaic dimension of Buddhist scripture. As Toh 785 in the Kangyur, it belongs to the broad class of dhāraṇī literature, short spells and ritual formulas transmitted alongside the canon's sutras for use in healing and protection.

Svāhā. As for the ritual procedure, having recited this mantra over the hand and then rubbed the belly, indigestion sickness will be cured.

This concludes the dhāraṇī for curing the sickness of indigestion.

Homage to the Three Jewels.

Homage to the Blessed One, the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly complete buddha, All-Seeing One.

Tadyathā. dīri tiṣṭha. taskara baddho si. macala macala svāhā.

Recite this seven times. Noble Mañjuśrī...

Translator's Notes

- The passage breaks off mid-sentence at "Noble Mañjuśrī" (マニジュシリー), as the source text is incomplete. The mantra syllables are transliterated as found, preserving the Sanskrit phonetics rather than attempting reconstruction, since the exact intended Sanskrit is uncertain in places (e.g., "taskara baddho si" may relate to binding a thief/obstacle).

Colophon

This is an AI-generated translation from the AI Stupa project. It was produced by a careful, doctrine-aware process aiming at a high degree of accuracy, but it has not been reviewed by a human translator and may contain errors. It is offered as a provisional translation for those texts of the Tibetan Buddhist canon that have not yet received an authoritative human translation. Where a published translation exists — above all from 84000: Translating the Words of the Buddha (84000.co) — that translation is definitive and should be preferred; please consult it instead. These translations are released into the public domain (CC0) in the spirit of spreading the Dharma to all corners of the earth.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.

May whoever encounters these words derive great benefit.