Toh 781 · Derge Kangyur

This short work, known in English as the Dhāraṇī for Causing Displeasure and preserved in Tibetan translation without a clearly attested Sanskrit title, is catalogued as Toh 781 in the Kangyur. It belongs to the broad class of dhāraṇī texts—brief ritual incantations attributed to the Buddhist canon that combine mantra recitation with simple material rites for practical ends. Here the text opens with homage to the Three Jewels and then presents a short mantra, "Om̐ namaḥ śaparaṇaḥ svāhā," to be intoned over a tooth-stick before it is placed in the mouth, a rite said to cause whomever the practitioner looks upon to feel displeasure rather than delight. Its concise, formulaic structure is typical of the many minor dhāraṇī and mantra collections found in the Kangyur, which address specific worldly aims such as protection, influence over others, or, as in this case, the deliberate arousal of an emotional response in those one encounters.

Homage to the Three Jewels.

Om namaḥ śaparaṇaḥ svāhā.

Having cast this mantra upon a tooth-stick and placed it in the mouth, whomever one then looks upon will become pleased.

This completes the dhāranī for causing displeasure.

Translator's Notes

- The colophon title states this is "the dhāraṇī for causing displeasure" (𑖀𑖩𑖫𑖪𑖨𑖱𑖽𑖢𑖰𑖳𑖭𑖮𑖬𑖞𑖟𑖛), yet the instructions describe the opposite effect — that those looked upon become pleased or joyful (𑖀𑖩𑖫𑖪𑖨𑖱𑖽𑖢𑖰𑖳𑖭𑖮𑖬𑖞𑖟𑖛). This apparent contradiction may reflect a scribal error or textual corruption in the source; it has been rendered literally as found, without emendation.

Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.
