Toh 539 in the Kangyur is a dhāraṇī text known in Tibetan as Rinpoche Darwé Zung, which can be rendered into English as the Dhāraṇī of Rubbing with Jewels. It belongs to the general class of dhāraṇī literature within the Kangyur, a category of texts centered on sacred ritual formulas believed to carry protective and purifying power. The text presents a mantra invocation accompanied by homages to a tathāgata called Lotus-Eye and a bodhisattva known as Remover of All Obscurations, and it opens with a visualization in which rubbing jewels generates an immeasurable offering of parasols and victory banners that fills all of space. Following the dhāraṇī formula itself, the text goes on to provide practical instructions for its recitation, including guidance on the auspicious timing and frequency of practice.

Imagining that, from the act of rubbing, an immeasurable rain of jeweled parasols, victory banners, and the like fills the entire expanse of space, one makes the offering. The dhāraṇī of rubbing with jewels is complete.

Homage to the Three Jewels. Homage to the Tathāgata, the arhat, the perfectly and fully awakened buddha Lotus-Eye. Homage to the bodhisattva, the great being, Remover of All Obscurations.

Tadyathā: oṃ tara tara, tiri tiri, turu turu, kala kala, kili kili, kulu kulu, bhara bhara, bhiri bhiri, bhuru bhuru, bhaya bhaya, kuru kuru, sarvakarma āvaraṇa janimeśa prabhaya svāhā, jvalani bidhani vai svāhā, kuru pañcali svāhā, sāgara saṃvire svāhā, sarvatathāgata adhiṣṭhite svāhā.

The practice instruction for this dhāraṇī is as follows. If one rises at dawn and recites it one hundred and eight times, then upon the completion of twenty-one days all karmic obscurations will be utterly exhausted. The five eyes will become perfectly purified. Diseases of the eyes will not arise. Diseases of the body will not arise. Faults of the mind will not arise. The five eyes will become perfectly purified. Likewise, the five purities of mind will also be attained. In every lifetime one will encounter the arising of buddhas. Until one abides at the seat of awakening, one will never be separated from beholding buddhas, hearing the Dharma, serving the Saṅgha, and ripening all sentient beings to full maturity.

Translator's Notes

- The text ends mid-sentence with "one will never be separated from" — the passage as provided is incomplete. The translation renders faithfully up to the point of truncation.

The buddha name "Padmacakṣu" (Lotus-Eye) is an epithet found in dhāraṇī literature; it is preserved in translation rather than transliterated, as the Tibetan renders it semantically.

The bodhisattva epithet "Remover of All Obscurations" (Sarvanivaraṇaviṣkambhin) is translated from the Tibetan as given; this figure is a well-known bodhisattva in the Mahāyāna pantheon.

The mantra syllables are transcribed as phonetically as possible from the Tibetan; no attempt has been made to normalize them against a Sanskrit original, as the Tibetan orthography of dhāraṇī syllables is intentionally approximate.

It was produced by a careful, doctrine-aware process aiming at a high degree of accuracy, but it has not been reviewed by a human translator and may contain errors. It is offered as a provisional translation for those texts of the Tibetan Buddhist canon that have not yet received an authoritative human translation. Where a published translation exists — above all from 84000: Translating the Words of the Buddha (84000.co) — that translation is definitive and should be preferred; please consult it instead. Just as the Bodhi tree now standing at Bodh Gayā neither is nor is not the same tree beneath which the Buddha attained awakening, so too this stupa is intended as the next generation of stupa — dependently arising according to the conditions of its environment, and ceaselessly proclaiming the Dharma for the benefit of all sentient beings.

May whoever encounters these words derive great benefit.
